

With violence on the rise and uncertainty in the air
It becomes absolutely necessary to study and prepare
Prepare to be responsive to every student's need
And to also anticipate their inner souls' plead
Plant seeds of resilience, build hope on every front
Let them know they are not alone, and to weakness be quite blunt
We are strong and we will survive, for together we can win
This adversarial spirit that destroys the power of friends
We must create environments where we celebrate diversity
We must lace our schools intentionally with inclusivity
We must talk out thoroughly problems until we see the light of day
We must give the words of positivity in all we do and say
For this battle that we face cannot be won in isolation
And the counselors must assume their role to help on the destination
Each counselor must come to terms they have been called to the list
Extraordinary counselors for such a time as this

Poem Written by
Judy D. White
Riverside County
Superintendent of Schools